

A Case Study on Role of Wine in Cooking

Chef Zaid Shaikh and Kamesh Gaikwad

Bunts Sangha's Ramanath Payyade College of Hospitality Management Studies, Mumbai, India

Abstract: This case study examines the significant role of wine in cooking, exploring its diverse culinary applications, flavor profiles, and cultural significance. It analyzes the use of wine as an ingredient in various cuisines, focusing on its ability to enhance flavors, tenderize meats, and create complex taste profiles. The study also delves into the cultural and historical context of wine in cooking, highlighting its importance as a culinary staple and its contribution to the overall dining experience.

Keywords: Food and beverage industry, varieties of wine, cooking wines, table wine, sparkling wines, sweet wines, wine maceration