

Importance of Clinical Examination in Homeopathy

Dr. Mukta Mala¹, Dr Jagdish Thebar², Dr Apurva Dixit³, Dr. Kanika Agarwal⁴

PhD Scholar, MD (Hom), Associate Professor, Dept- POM,

Professor & HOD, Dept POM²

Asst. Prof, Dept- POM^{3,4}

Swasthya Kalyan Homeopathic Medical College & Research Centre, Jaipur, Rajesthan, India

malamohan12@gmail.com

Abstract: A clinical examination is consisting of three phases: case history, examination, and explanation. Out of which for homeopaths a brief case taking or history of patient is a crucial component. But, it is equally important to focus on physical examination (having the sound knowledge of all allied subjects) in order to make a provisional diagnosis, for therapeutic propose, to save patients from unnecessary investigations as well as to develop a good doctor- patient relationship.

Keywords: Clinical examination, Homeopathy, Physical examination