

Women's Way of Nature Conservation- Tradition to Convention

Shintre Sayali

Research Medical Officer

Paediatric research unit, KEM Hospital & Research Centre, Pune
smartdoc.sayali@gmail.com

Abstract: Human beings are largely dependent on nature for livelihood. Since then women are playing major role in wise consumption and sustained use of these resources. Conservation means protection as well as sustainable use. Indian culture highlighted importance of and being grateful to nature by various customs and traditions. Ecofeminism says that women are closer to nature than men are. This closeness, therefore, makes women more nurturing and caring towards their environment. Women have contributed larger share to it by various movements and forming organisations to protect it. Various women centric policies for nature conservation can be considered for initiation at government level.

Keywords: Women, Nature conservation, sustainable use

REFERENCES

- [1]. Saini et al, Role of Indian Women in Conservation of Biodiversity, Int.J.Curr.Microbiol.App.Sci (2019) 8(4): 63-68
- [2]. 2.KanhiyaMahour, Role of Women in Environment Conservation, Journal of Advanced Laboratory Research in Biology E-ISSN: 0976-7614 Volume 7, Issue 1, 2016 PP 17-26
- [3]. Vikaspedia.in