

The Ever-Evolving Art of Bonsai

Archana. V¹, R. Jenna¹ and L. Vishnu²

UG Scholar, Department of Horticulture¹

Assistant Professor, Department of Horticulture²

Roever Agricultural College, TRIARD, Perambalur, Tamil Nadu, India

Corresponding author:jennavasanthi11@gmail.com

Abstract: The centuries old craft is thriving as both a hobby and a art form with contemporary practitioners around the world. Over two thousand years ago China has the technology for bonsai cultivation, so it is regarded as the first country where bonsai first appeared at basic scale. A bonsai is an artistic representation of mature tree that suggests a scene in nature. The bonsai ask the viewer to see beyond the physical plant to the world beyond. It takes at least three generations to make a really good bonsai says Johnny chang. The bonsai follows a core principle based on the root-shootbalance to effectively design both the root and canopy.

Keywords: Bonsai, Old craft, Miniature mature tree and Root-shoot balance

REFERENCES

- [1]. Charles R.Long. An informal history of Bonsai. Arnold arboretum of harvard . 1971 ;31(5):261- 273.
- [2]. Frédéric Boudon, Premyslaw Prusinkiewicz, Pavol Federl, Christophe Godin, Radoslaw Karwowski. Interactive design of bonsai tree models. Computer Graphics Forum, Wiley, 2003; 22 (3):591-599.
- [3]. Ogden Tanner.Bonsai: a way of looking at trees with different eyes.Smithsonian.1989;20(7):138- 152.
- [4]. Prasann Kumar,Padmanabh Dwivedi.Bonsai:symbol of culture,ideals,money and Beauty. International journal of agriculture, environment and biotechnology.2011;4(2):115-118.