I. INTRODUCTION

HR policies are also defined as that body of principles and rules of conduct which govern the enterprise in its relationship with employees.

Such a policy statement provides guidelines for a wide variety of employment relationships in the organization. The purpose and significance of the HR policies hardly need any elaboration.

Every organization needs policies to ensure consistency in action and equity in its relation with employees.

Policies serve the purpose of achieving organizational goals in an effective manner. HR policies constitute the basis for sound HRM practices. Moreover, policies are the yardstick by which accomplishment of programmers can be measured.

Human Resources policies are generalized guidelines on employee management, adopted by consensus in an organization to regulate the behavior of employees and their managers or supervisors.

As for the dichotomy between an HR policy and a procedure, they can be compared to a human being and the shadow. Both are inseparable and as shadows set the outlines of a human being, so do procedures set the outlines of an HR policy.

A policy is a guide for repetitive action in major areas of business. It is a statement of commonly accepted understanding of decision-making criteria. Policies are set up to achieve several benefits. By taking policy decisions on frequently recurring problems, the top management provides the guidelines to lower level managers.

HR Policies cover the following:

- Policy of hiring people with due respect to factors like reservations, sex, marital status, and the like.
- Policy on terms and conditions of employment-compensation policy and methods, hours of work, overtime, promotion, transfer, lay-off and the like.
- Policy with regard medical assistance-sickness benefits, ESI and company medical benefits.
